The Board will meet next on Tuesday, April 14, 7:30 PM at the Park Pavilion. As an Oakwood Glen homeowner, you have a right to attend each and every meeting to voice concerns, ask questions, make comments, and/or complaints. Exercise your rights! As always, all residents are welcome. See you there!

Springtime Additions

It's springtime and everyone wants to spruce up their yards and homes. We encourage everyone to take pride in their homes and yards in Oakwood Glen. Please remember, when you are planning to add to your home, whether it is a patio, drive addition, or room addition, you have to go through the Architectural Control Committee of OWG. You can receive a form by calling Stella Walleck, Community Manager, 876-2505. After you fill out the form, the director of ACC will review the form and present it to the Board, usually a very short and easy process. The forms are primarily to make sure that changes are within the guidelines or deed restrictions of OWG. If you have any questions, call Craig Paustian at 376-0574.

Thanks to Eversole

Oakwood Glen would like to thank the office of Harris County Precinct 4 Commissioner Jerry Eversole for helping us remove the unsightly trailer that was abandoned at the Five Forks entrance of the subdivision.

Also, thank you for all the "Slow We love our children" signs throughout the neighborhoods in the area.

Park Pavilion Remodeling

Since the publication of the March ACORN, we have had some changes to the contractors remodeling the pavilion. The original contract was awarded to Irby Construction. After the February Board Meeting, we found he did not have all the required insurance. Instead of putting the project on hold for another month or more, the Board voted to award the contract to Harden Construction for $79,207. Construction is well underway and moving along smoothly. The only problem we have come upon is matching the existing brick with new ones. This issue is being worked on. Color selections were made at the March meeting for the interior. You can see the progress being made but please BE CAREFUL AROUND THE AREA BECAUSE CONSTRUCTION IS STILL UNDERWAY.

Make Recycling a Way of Life

[Ed Note: This article is written by a concerned resident and has nothing to do with the Board of Directors of OWG.]

The Houston plastic recycling plant no longer is accepting plastic containers; therefore the locations listed last month no longer accept "1" and "2" plastic containers, although they still take plastic bags. The City of Houston's Westpark Drive facility in Southwest Houston is the only location in the Houston area still accepting plastic containers for recycling.

Since the recycling movement is relatively new and has gathered momentum faster than the creation of products that are made of recyclable materials, supply will exceed demand temporarily. Don't become frustrated but realize that the recycling movement is without a national organizational plan to create incentives for business to invest in recycling technology.

Meanwhile, continue to recycle those items accepted at recycling centers, buy containers made of recycled materials to support his new industry, and substitute other products not packaged in plastic when possible.

One area in which we can make a large negative impact of landfills is in the disposal of yard waste, which takes up about 17% of Texas landfills. Install a mulching kit on your lawn mower (less than $50) and compost other yard and kitchen organic material. Compost is the best food for your lawn and beds.

Letters and calls to your local, state, and national legislative officials on your concerns about the lack of an environmental recycling policy may produce results.

To share recycling information, all Yvonne Tallent, 370-0938.
